Kliphuisie

Just a 90-minute drive from Cape Town lies Paternoster, a picturesque fishing village off the West Coast. Framed by indigenous fynbos, scenic white beaches and rocky outcrops hugging the Atlantic Ocean, Paternoster's distinctive beauty is reflected in multi-coloured fishing boats dotted along kilometres of unspoilt beach and whitewashed houses with blue shutters reminiscent of the Greek isles.

Not surprisingly, this fishing village has become a favourite getaway for travellers and weary city dwellers seeking to escape to a seaside hideaway.

If you are a cultural adventurer or history enthusiast looking to immerse yourself in a Paternoster breakaway with a difference, then Kliphuisie, a cosy two-bed cottage situated in the heart of the village is a great option.

This traditional self-catering fishermen's cottage has been carefully preserved over the years to retain its original historic and cultural ambience.

Within walking distance of the beach and village restaurants, Kliphuisie offers a lively glimpse into how the warm-hearted locals – who call this relaxed West Coast village home – live every day. In close touch with nature and the sea, the villagers are known for their humour and hospitality. Like the visitors to their historic village, Paternoster folk love the unspoilt beaches, sunshine and relaxed atmosphere.

ACCOMMODATION

Cultural enthusiasts will relish the artistic charm and vibrant interiors that enhance Kliphuisie's history-infused ambience.

With its age-weathered rough stone walls and paint-bedecked front door, this welcoming retreat offers comfortable accommodation for two. The cosy bedroom with queen-sized bed has an en suite bathroom with natural stone shower.

The kitchenette flows onto a country-style lounge and dining area, livened by furnishings in lively orange, red and cerise. With its own snug fireplace, the well-equipped kitchen area provides an inviting space to prepare a meal of fresh seafood bought from a fisherman's boat in the village harbour.

FACILITIES

If soaking up Paternoster's rich cultural ambience and cheerful village residents, or experiencing the many activities in the area are not enough, you could simply do what many Kliphuisie guests do – simply practice the art of doing as little as possible.

Kliphuisie offers all the amenities for an enjoyable self-catering experience.

The well-equipped kitchenette includes mini stove, fridge and microwave.

For couch potatoes, the cottage also has TV and select DSTV channels.

As a self-catering cottage, you have the freedom of preparing your own meals when it suits you, but for those who like to eat out, Paternoster has several restaurants that feature the delicious seafood characteristic of the area.

If you want more lavish culinary fare, the nearby five-star Abalone House Boutique Guesthouse elevates opulence and luxury to a new level in its decadent Reuben's restaurant.
